the Editor's Desk —

This issue of "Numisma" features a selection of U.S. Paper Money, Second and Third Charter National Bank notes, together with a very specialized offering of the small California Gold coins. While we feel that the currency is priced to move, and the California Gold moderately valued, to off-set the usual summer dollar (both of the first '57 "Numismat" being mailed early in the year) we are willing to extend a discount on orders exceeding $100. on this list. All orders, accompanied by payment, received prior to August 15th, will be subject to a 10% discount when over $100. However, U.S. Paper Money can not be included under this offer, as the retail price is within 10% of the face value of the note where the discount will bring the price below the face value. For fairness, such bills can be included when combined with coins at a higher premium, but we shall retain the right to refuse printed orders at our discretion. When ordering, please give a definite choice where possible, as a few numbers are invariably covered by the telephone (those being exceptional bargains or very popular items).

The "Question Forum" is open to all, non-subscribers and dealers included. It is our wish, at all times to disseminate authoritative information, so do not hesitate to present us with your problems. You can at least try and help!

Order early for prompt and efficient service —

Qs. Just how many Brasher Doubloons exist? What is the Style piece illustrated in the Guidebook? P.F., San Francisco, Cal.

A. Six regular doubloons, one "Half Doubloon" and two style doubloons. Of the six New York doubloons (the only one originally known, and still to most collectors the Brasher doubloon) one has the EB hallmark punched on the breast; this one was at Johns Hopkins University and was in the Bushnell collection. The other five, with punch on wing, are now respectively in the following collections: (1) Smithsonian Institution; (2) Yale University; (3) Johns Hopkins, ex Stickney and Ellsworth; (4) Mid-private collection, ex Davis, Mills, Ten Eyck; (5) Eastern private collection, ex Jackman and Newcomer. The "Half Doubloon" was discovered by David Proskey around 1928; the story goes that it was brought in a lot of South American gold which happened to include this coin. We do not know its present owner, but available photographs indicate that it is from the same dies as the weight doubloons. The two Lima Style pieces represent, probability, a later (1792?) enterprise of Brasher. One of them is in Johns Hopkins, ex Newcomer; the other was first seen in the Ten Eyck collection (1922) and has since passed through the hands of our colleague from Des Moines. An article by V. Breen mentioning these pieces at somewhat greater length will be found in a forthcoming issue of the "Scrapbook"; its main subject is the rarest American and Colonial gold coins.

Ques. Proof Silver Dollars, 1840-49, list in the Tenth Edition of the Guidebook from $115. to $140. I have been willing to pay more than that for real ones, but all the ones I bid on in the . . . sales (two well-known dealers—Ed.) I have had to pass up as they were all nicked up and didn't look in the least like my specimens of 1856 to 1873. If that is the correct price level, why don't proofs come up more often? If they are rarer, why don't they sell higher? M.L.S., Atlanta, Ga.

Ans. Real proofs used to come up fairly often, but they seem to have found their way, originals and restrikes alike, into many of the collector or appreciative hands. Most of them were originally from the E. H. R. Green estate, 1936-43. The price level has been brought down by two factors: First, most "proofs" sold are, as you can point out, anything but; second, real ones don't come up often enough for dealers to tout them as rarities. For a glimpse of authentic proofs of this period are really worth, see our Forty-Eighth Sale catalog, lots 657 to 660. Originals would be worth more, perhaps double to triple Tenth Edition.

Ques. Under lot 380 of your Forty-Eighth Sale (an 1857 Half Cent), you state: "The only variety coined for circulation." precisely does this mean? H.H.E., Findlay, Ohio.

Ans. Two varieties of the 1857 Half Cent exist. One, obverse 1 and reverse B (the die of 1856, with double impression on CENT and ribbon), exists only in proof, both originals and off-weight restrikes being known. This variety was therefore not coined for circulation. The other die variety, with the same obverse 1 and reverse A (dot-like die defect on r. side of first word AMERICA), comes very rarely in proof, but quite often in circulation from Fair to Unc., and is the only variety of the year known in circulation. 35,180 specimens having been coined in January, 1857, is all we mean by saying that it is the only variety coined for circulation. Part of the common confusion may arise from the old and vague notion that "proof" means a state of preservation of a coin presumably struck for circulation, when in fact proofs are never anything but special mintages outside the regular issue. Dr. Sheldon calls them "polished-up portraits of the currency." We discussed this problem in "Numisma," Sept.-Oct. 1955, Vol. 1, No. 5, and Jan.-Feb. 1956, Vol. 3, No. 1.

Ques. What information have you about the 1843 "D" Half Eagle with small mintmark D? I have seen only five of them in the past 25 years as against many of the large D type. Why is this variety so rare? G.W., Charlotte, N.C.

Ans. This was one of the questions looked up by Walter Breen during his latest trip to the National Archives. From all that has been ascertained, the 1842 "D" with large date and letters (and small D) had been struck from a single pair of dies, forwarded to Dahlonega Sept. 29, 1842. The first Half-Eagle dies sent in to the Mint, presumably also with small D, were sent Jan. 17, 1843, (for obverses). There is no record of earlier 1843 obverses. Two pairs of dies followed, March 1-2, 1843, evidently large D type, and two more pairs, July 15. The records are not complete, but it appears that the Half-Eagles were struck all through the year. Any rarity of first strikes would apparently arise from the fact that all were struck during the first couple of months of the year. We are not convinced that large and small mintmarks in general constitute major varieties, however, and have not attempted to keep track of all specimens that have passed through our hands, so it is quite possible that many more specimens exist, particularly as the four reverse dies apparently were used up in the striking.
